Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Saturday 13 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Outbreaks of sleet or snow, becoming rain later Sunday. Windy.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rather cloudy with outbreaks of sleet or snow spreading east, perhaps some freezing rain and ice. Turning to rain along the west coast later. Windy, with southerly severe gales across the Hebrides.

Sunday:
Mostly cloudy with outbreaks of sleet and snow, with a risk of freezing rain leading to ice in places. The precipitation becoming mainly rain later. Windy, severe gales across Hebrides.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Rather cloudy through into mid-week with outbreaks of rain or showers. Much milder than recently with a significant thaw of lying snow and generally lighter winds than over the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.